Birdy wings movie soundtrack

Courtesy Too often, the music that accompanies a movie feels like an afterthought—some songs tacked on to boost the mood, a ballad to tie a montage together. But in these 18 movies, that's thankfully not the case: the sound is integrated, sometimes even overshadowing the visual with a masterful compilation. Check out the 18 best movie soundtracks below. Ad – Continue Reading Below 1 High Fidelity amazon.com As is the case with many well soundtracked movies, High Fidelity has a plot centered around music. John Cusack's character, Rob Gordon, owns a failing record store in Chicago. Gordon's business is handicapped by his prestige taste in music—the same thing that makes this soundtrack so great. 2 Kill Bill Vol. 1 amazon.com Kill Bill just wouldn't be what it is without its eclectic soundtrack. Whether it's Nancy Sinatra crooning Bang bang, he shot me down, or 5.6.7.8's rocking out to Woo Hoo, these songs make the scenes they're in. 3 The Big Chill amazon.com Marvin Gaye, The Temptations, and Aretha Franklin? This is a soundtrack that stands on its own—no movie needed. 4 I Am Sam amazon.com It's good that I Am Sam couldn't secure the rights to the original songs from The Beatles, because there's something irreplaceable about these Beatles covers by the likes of Eddie Vedder, Sheryl Crow, Aimee Mann, and so many more. 5 A Star Is Born amazon.com If you haven't yet seen A Star Is Born, you should—if only for a scene when Lady Gaga belts out a primal song-scream so addictive, you want to hear it on a loop for months. (The rest is good too, of course.) 6 Reality Bites amazon.com Songs from Lenny Kravitz, The Knack and Dinosaur Jr. made this quintessential 90s film what it was. Listening to the soundtrack feels like opening a time capsule. 7 Top Gun amazon.com Now here is a soundtrack that fits its film, as the reflection of its on-screen counterpart, transformed into sound waves. Really though, Kenny Loggins's Danger Zone? Honestly, that song should be played in every Tom Cruise movie, period. 8 Black Panther amazon.com Black Panther's soundtrack feels almost like a parallel project to its film—and the result is something that carries equal cultural weight. But with Kendrick Lamar, one of the greatest musicians of our time, at the helm, it would never be anything less. 9 The Graduate amazon.com The Graduate is a great film, about much of its time. But honestly, it's the soundtrack that feels like it has survived the test of time. Simon & Garfunkel's haunting, litting songs will feel resonant for a long time to come. 10 Dazed and Confused amazon.com with dazed and confused, director Richard Linklater set out to capture a moment in American culture. And with the 1970s (and most eras), it's simply impossible without mounting a killer soundtrack. It's more of a mixtape, perhaps, than a real soundtrack—but worth a listen anyway. 11 Rushmore amazon.com Wes Anderson's depiction of youthful revolt needed some sound to go with it. After all, what is an angsty teenager without their even angsty-er music? This compilation of songs from The Who, Cat Stevens, The Kinks, and more certainly does the trick. 12 Purple Rain amazon.com Purple Rain is basically a Prince album that plays out on screen. So obviously the actual album part is pretty good on its own. 13 Space Jam amazon.com Space Jam is bizarre, iconic and forever culturally relevant. The same can be said of its soundtrack, which mixes songs from Salt-N-Pepa, Coolio, D'Angelo, and many more. Per Spin, the album went six times platinum after its release, a ringing endorsement in itself. 14 Pulp Fiction amazon.com This is the second Quentin Tarantino film on the list, which says some of the director's well-placed priorities. For Pulp Fiction, he whipped up the perfect mix of rock, pop and soul to set the mood for the film's comically gruesome violence and pointless cocaine use. In a word, it's lit. 15 Marie Antoinette amazon.com The real Marie Antoinette wasn't listening to Bow Wow Wow and Aphex Twin—but the songs perfectly fit Sofia Coppola's take on the vilified queen. 16 Guardians of the Galaxy amazon.com yes, Guardians of the Galaxy is all about outer space crime, but it's also, somehow, about classic rock. It's not common to see a blockbuster Hollywood action movie with a critically acclaimed soundtrack, but then Guardians of the Galaxy wasn't quite your typical Hollywood action movie. 17 The Bodyguard amazon.com With Whitney Houston starring, The Bodyguard simply had to have a great soundtrack. Houston didn't disappoint its fans. The album made music industry history with its amazing sales, and was generally an audience-pleasing hit. 18 Dirty Dancing amazon.com Another commercial success, the Dirty Dancing soundtrack feels like the movie: classic, uncomplicated, and definitely in touch with the power of teenage hormones. Lovebirds are a gift that insecure and Silicon Valley fans and action-comedy lovers will surely love. It was supposed to be released in theaters, but thankfully Netflix scooped up theater-less Lovebirds. The streaming platform's latest release brings Issa Rae and Kumail Nanjiani together as a pair on screen (which you never knew you needed until now) and adds a fun twist with high stakes and a killer soundtrack. Jibran and Lelani, who have been dating for four years, are on their way to a friend's house for dinner before accidentally hitting a cyclist with his car. The couple's next 24 hours are filled with murder, fights, and a very scary horse. You will question their hilariously awful decisions and root for their relationship during their crazy journey. Lovebirds soundtrack plenty of romantic jams and pump up hymns to This normal couple (and the audience) on their dangerous adventure. A standout track is Katy Perry's earworm Firework which is so catchy it requires a sing-along from Jibran and Lelani amid all their chaos. (Seriously, who can resist belting this song when it comes on?) This soundtrack is as unexpected as the plot of The Lovebirds. By Daniel Westlake A movie soundtrack is one of the most important parts of a movie, but few people know how or where to download them. You can buy tracks on iTunes or AmazonMP3. However, there are a number of online websites where you can download the amazing movie soundtrack you heard in that movie the other day. All you have to do is identify the film, the composer and check out one of these locations. An extensive database that goes beyond the opening theme song, the song over the credits or the song all the characters dance to – it contains the less remarkable numbers from a movie that only real fans will recognize. With more than 45,000 titles to choose from, SoundtrackCollector.com for the serious musician and soundtrack enthusiast who is truly one of the composers and often brilliant and undervalued work they do for each film. With what may be the largest database of movie soundtracks online, ArtistDirect.com provide most of these downloads for free (with a fee that must be paid for access to others). But most of the soundtracks that are easiest to find are mainstream pop songs that have been purchased for the soundtrack, not necessarily from composers who have made movie music. Think about this if you are looking for something reasonably obscure. Last.fm seem to have most music tracks in their database – the challenge comes with finding these tracks. If you are going to use Last.fm to track down these free audio tracks, have all the keyword information available to find them. Some of the titles are listed by film, some are listed by composer and others are only listed by title. Don't be discouraged if you can't find it from scratch – or just use one of the other sites listed above. The Fault In Our Stars is already known for making a lot of people cry, but the sweet sadness of the film doesn't end at the box office: The music video for Birdy's contribution to the TFOS soundtrack is officially out. And yes, it's a nice place to spend a few minutes of your time. The Fault In Our Stars soundtrack came out about a month ago and quickly rose to success, even beating out the endless Disney juggernaut Frozen. It is possible that the last crime landed them on the hit list of the Illuminati, but if so, it has not taken effect yet. How could it, really, have people like Ed Sheeran and Birdy around to remind the Illuminati of their Failure in Our Stars obsession? (Sheeran's All Of the Stars, if you cried too loud to hear, played over song. Not About Angels, plays at a particularly vulnerable point in the film, (spoiler alert) right as everyone leaves Augustus' funeral. With lyrics like Don't give me up/Don't give... me up, it's pretty heartbreaking. Birdy, like Sarah McLachlan before her, also has a voice perfect for delivering that gut punch. Especially considering verses like these:How unfair, it's just our love Found something real that is uncontactable But if you had searched the whole wide world would you dare let it go? You can watch the video for the song below:If you want to cry more, here's her cover for Bon Ivers Skinny Love:Picture: Birdy/YouTube Birdy/YouTube
